THE PROROGATION.

At 11:45 a.m. the Band was playing a cheery march and "our brave army" was marching manfully into the enclosure in front of Aliiolani Hale, notwithstanding the fact that they had to HIDE THEIR GORGEOUS UNIFORMS under dull-colored military overcoats, and that a general dampness over the stocks of the muskets caused them to hold them somewhat unsteadily. On the piazza in front, a number of officials and invited guests were watching the manoeuvres from their coign of vantage and enjoying the spectacle of Professor Berger merrily beating time in a waterproof overcoat. If our soldiers are not numerous they are at least brilliant (with their overcoats off,) and perhaps, in a few years, they will learn to obey orders with military precision and to present arms "with one accord" instead of in twenty different ways. Inside the building the President,

THE HON. GODFREY RHODES, was making his farewell speech to the Assembly of 1882, and congratulating them on the work they had done, and what good boys they had been, and, with a merry twinkle in his eye, hoping to meet them all next time.

PRECISELY AT 12 NOON, a royal salute was fired, announcing that His Majesty had left the Palace and was on his way to the Hall. Inside the Assembly rooms, instead of the usual members' desks and chairs and other dull, work-a-day paraphernalia, the dais was decorated with the Hawaiian flags and two kahilis, each in the care of a gorgeously liveried kanaka, were placed one on each side. On the throne was placed the celebrated yellow feather cloak of the Kamehamehas, and in front of it a small table. On each side of it were thrones which were afterwards occupied by their Royal Highnesses Liliuokalani and Like- like, the former sitting at the right and the latter at the left of His Majesty. Handsomely upholstered chairs and sofas were placed round the upper end of the room for the Commissioners, Consular agents, Ministers and their wives and the Nobles. Amongst those present we noticed the British and French Commissioners, the officers of H.M.S. Sappho, the Consuls for America, Germany, &c., the Judges of the Supreme Court, the members of the Cabinet, and almost all the Nobles and Representatives. Whilst we were waiting for His Majesty to appear we had an opportunity to observe the dresses of the ladies, who were in many instances as well-dressed as if their dresses had been imported from Paris. The most striking were those of H.R.H. Likelike, pale blue with white lace; Mrs. Bush, pink and immense train; Mrs. Hayselden, cream color, and H.R.H. Liliuokalani, black with ornaments in red. Not being acquainted with the names of some we are unable to do more than mention one costume of figured velvet which attracted special attention. In a few minutes everyone rose to their feet as preceded by the Chamberlain carrying the King's speech, and followed by the Ministry and Judge Judd, and accompanied by H. R. H. Liliuokalani and Likelike and Mr. Cleghorn. After prayer by the Rev. A. Mackintosh, in Hawaiian, who by command of His Majesty, acted as the Chaplain of the day; the King delivered the following speech—first in Hawaiian and then in English. Printed copies were handed round afterwards:

SPEECH OF HIS MAJESTY THE KING, ON THE OCCASION OF THE PROROGATION OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY, AUGUST 7th, 1882.

Nobles and Representatives:

The Session of the Legislative Assembly of 1882 has finished its labors, and I congratulate you, at the close of your deliberations, on the general prosperity of the Kingdom, and on account of a common hope in which I cordially share, that my Kingdom is assured a new departure in the way of beneficent progress.

I am happy to state that our relations with Foreign Governments continue to be of the most satisfactory character. His Excellency H. A. P. Carter, my Minister Plenipotentiary, at the Court at Lisbon, has concluded a provisional convention with the Government of His Majesty the King of Portugal, which favors Portuguese immigration to our Islands.

You have provided amply for the best interests of the Kingdom—for immigration to promote re-population; for the sanitary welfare of the people; for the care of our interests abroad—especially the Treaty of Reciprocity with the Government of the United States; for more effective police administration; for the internal peace of the country; and for the encouragement of its chief industries. And I feel assured that these liberal provisions will be judiciously administered, and faithfully carried into execution by my Ministers.

I thank you, gentlemen, for the generous provision made for myself, Her Majesty the Queen, and for other members of the Royal Family.

I desire to express my appreciation of your legislation on various measures calculated to promote the welfare of my people, especially in the passage of Acts: to consolidate and simplify our tax laws; to provide a loan for important measures of internal improvements; to provide a more effective control of the traffic in spirituous liquors; for the settlement of certain claims against Crown lands; for the audit of public accounts; and for the coronation.

I trust that at the close of your public duties, and on proceeding to your several homes, you will, as the result of your meetings and deliberations in the national Council, bear with you a warmer love of your country, and a deeper interest in your nationality and independence, and that in your several walks of life you will give assurances to your several constituencies of the watchful interest of the Government in their welfare, and that conjointly with them you will strive for the best welfare of my Kingdom.

Nobles and Representatives:

I pray that the Almighty will have you in his keeping. I now declare the Legislative Assembly of 1882 prorogued.

With this the proceedings terminated, and the King returned to the palace. The number in attendance was comparatively small, the Hall being less than three-fourths full; probably 300 were present, but this is accounted for by the state of the weather, which remained wet all day.

A good second-hand cut-under carriage and two two-seat spring wagons can be bought cheap at Phil Stein's carriage shop. 158 1w

The number of letters received by the P. M. S. S. Zealandia, by the mail was 3,290.

Special meeting of Lodge le Progress de l'Océanie, No. 124, A. F. and A. M. will be held this Tuesday Evening, at 7:30 o'clock.

THE King has signed the Liquor Bill and vetoed the restriction of Chinese Immigration Bill. These two facts were coupled in many a mouth yesterday.

We hear that the missing steam whaler Lucertia, which left New Bedford over a year ago, and should have called in at this port on her way to the Arctic, has turned up at the port of Albany, in the southwest of Western Australia. How she got there is a mystery, and we have no doubt that the narrative of her adventures will be intensely interesting.

The rain will put a stop to many law-suits which had commenced last week, or were about to commence this week; and many of our local taro growers and banana cultivators will rejoice over what, before, they looked sad enough. We hear too, that the cane crop will be short on the other islands this year for want of rain.

The storm which brought us the long looked for rain yesterday, has blown in a most unusual direction. We are informed by a competent authority that the case is almost, if not wholly, without precedent. The course of the storm wind has been from N.E. through N. to W., and the usual course is from S. through S. E. to W. Thus it has followed an exactly opposite direction to its usual one.

DILLINGHAM & Co. have on exhibition, for sale, a double-headed hydraulic ram. It is a most perfect one of its kind, and may be used either single or double.

The lunch at the palace yesterday was informal and jolly. It was held in the Grand Reception Hall of the palace.

We suggest that some provision be made to prevent the accumulation of storm-water in the streets during a heavy shower. A stone channel about 8 inches deep next the curbstone, and sloping up towards the centre of the street, (about 2 feet wide altogether) on each side of a street, if so arranged as to follow the natural dip of the ground, and whenever the street crosses,—gullies that these be taken advantage of so as to allow the water to flow to a lower level, would we believe go far to obviate the trouble.

The meeting of the Athletic Association last night lapses for want of a quorum.

SEVERAL "drunks" at the Police Station.

London, July 25.—In the House of Commons this afternoon the Speaker read a message from the Queen announcing the calling out of the reserves on account of the troubles in Egypt.

London, July 29.—Sir Garnet Wolseley does not leave England until this day week, and there are some who believe that by that time Arabi Pasha will have knocked under, but it is very probable that Turkey will give trouble. At least the friends of the Ministry look upon this as the greatest danger now before it.

London, July 29.—The effect of the unsettled state of Europe has again been to throw large sums of money into the American securities market. The rush to get out of Turkish and Egyptian stocks shows no abatement, although the large purchases made by Continental speculators prevent a panic or even a serious failure in prices.
